"Ma wants two pounds of butter exactly like what you sent up last. If it ain't exactly like that, she won't take it," said the small boy.

The grocer turned to his numerous customers and remarked blandly:

"Some people in my business don't like particular customers, but I do. It's my delight to serve them and get them what they want. I will attend to you in a moment, little boy."

"Be sure to get the same kind," said the boy. "A lot of pa's relations is visiting at our house, and ma don't want 'em to come again."

Attacked by Eagles.

J. L. Durnell, a lumber dealer of Norfolk, N. Y., while looking over some timber land in Princess Anne county, recently, had to fight six eagles for his life. Falling into a hole, he was momentarily helpless. The great birds of prey swooped down on him with their talons and beaks, scratching his flesh and tearing his clothing. Regaining his feet he fought them, big stick in hand, for a distance of 300 yards before gaining shelter. He was then almost helpless.

To Be Expected.

"You have made money by turning your talents to advertising work, but have you not lost your literary prestige?" asked the friend.

"Well, I must admit," replied the poet, "that I have received a good deal of 'ad' verse criticism."

THE PARTING OF THE WAYS.

Only One Idea Suggested Itself to Uncle Ransom if Separation Had to Come.

"Uncle Ransom," said the planter, "you rode my best horse 20 miles to that festival Saturday night; you kept him out all day Sunday and nearly killed him Sunday night. How many times have I told you to let my horses rest on Sunday?"

"Yes, suh, Marse Robert, dat's so, but—"

"How many times have I told you if you didn't quit that, you and I couldn't get along together on this place?"

"Dat sho' is the trufe, Marse Robert. You p'intedly tole me dat—but you knows a nigger, he jes' hacherly forgits."

"Every negro on this place believe that he can do exactly as he pleasea." "Dar now, bless Gawd, you sho' spoke a parable; dese young niggers is gittin' mighty triffin'."

"It has come to this, Ransom; Reveille is not big enough for you and me. To-morrow morning we part; you go your way and I go mine."

"Yes, suh."

The old negro looked sorely troubled and bewildered. He glanced over his shoulder at the rippling lake, the open cotton, the perfectly level fields. Ransom had been born on Reveille and had never known any other home. His heart went out in supreme pity for the man who had to leave it.

"Well, Marse Robert, ef we jes' can't get along together—ef we jes' 'bout ter separte, would you mind tellin' me whar'bouts you 'spects ter go?"—Harris Dickson, in Everybody's.

Ways of Raising Money for Charity.

From times immemorial in China, a donation of 20,000 taels to charity has secured for the donor the much-prized peacock's feather, while for half that sum a title of nobility is conferred on one's ancestors to the third generation. The late emperor of Brazil followed the same method when erecting a hospital in Rio de Janeiro. Having found difficulty in obtaining the necessary funds, he announced that the title of "baron" was to be conferred on every subscriber of 100,000 milreis and that of "count" on subscribers of 250,000 milreis. This announcement produced the desired effect, and the hospital was soon completed. The opening ceremony was performed by the emperor and attended by a large number of the newly ennobled, who did not altogether relish the words inscribed in letters of gold on the gable of the new building: "Human Vanity to Human Misery."

At the Turn of the Road.

In the perspective from the turn of the road we may now see how many times the paralyzing hand of procrastination touched the good deeds we meant to do, the golden dreams we longed to transform into actualities. We wished to do, and we wanted to do, but we did not will to do. The fault was not in conditions, but in us. We were not equal to opportunities. It is a false philosophy that teaches that opportunity calls only once at any man's house. It comes with the persistence of an importunate creditor, always in a new guise, and clamors for admission, but we may be too busy to answer the bell.—Circle Magazine.

Publican—And how do you like being married, John?

John—Don't like it at all.

"Why, what's the matter wi' she, John?"

"Well, first thing in the morning it's money; when I goes 'ome to my dinner it's money again, and at supper it's the same. Nothing but money, money, money."

"Well, I never! What do she do wi' all that money?"

"I dunno, I ain't give her any yet."—Literary Digest.
